

This Day And Age

© 2008 Words & Music by Dan Rub

What'll you do and what'll you say
And what'll you think about the day
What'll you give and what'll you take
And what'll you need to compensate
Who'll you be and who'll you see
And who'll survive the agony
Who'll you love and who'll you hate
And what'll decide denying fate

In this day and age
In this day and age
In this day and age
In this day and age

Where'll you run and where'll you hide
And what'll convince you to decide
Where'll it show and where'll you go
And how do you think you're gonna know

What'll you build and what'll you break
And what do you think it's gonna take
Who'll be left and who'll be there
And who'll be lucky enough to care
